Boscastle and Around

St Alban bungalow is located towards the top of the village, with a steep road down to the harbour area. Access to the harbour can be via the headland, a fairly steep path with some rocky, slippery areas. The harbour has shops, restaurants, public houses and National Trust visitor centre. If driving down there is a large car park which gets very busy in high season. The top of the village has a public house, The Napoleon, a petrol station which also has a shop for everyday items. Walking in the harbour area is generally easy with some small slopes. The upper areas can be reached via fairly steep slopes or steep steps, care should be taken in these areas as the slate can be very slippery.
